The Story of Prophet MUSA (عليه السلام)

There once lived an evil king named Firaun. He was arrogant, and greedy for power. He even made people worship him, instead of Allah!

He had a dream that a little boy would one day come and take away his power and throne!

He was so bad that he decided to kill every little boy so that only he would remain King.

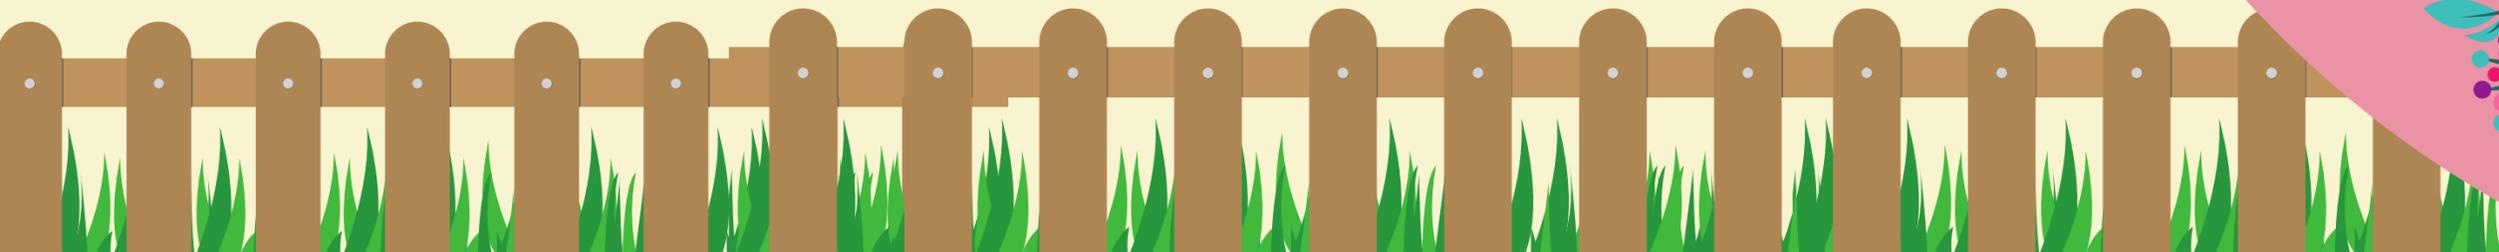

Musa (عليه السلام) was born in the year Firaun had his dream. He was supposed to be killed by him, but Allah took care of Musa (عليه السلام)'s mother. He inspired her to put baby Musa (عليه السلام) in a basket, and throw him out into the river.

Musa (عليه السلام)'s mother had a strong faith in Allah and trusted him. She threw her baby boy into the river, and he eventually reached Firaun's house, where he was rescued by Aasiyah, Firaun's wife. She loved the baby so much, she decided to keep him. Allah is so great, that even though Firaun killed all boys fearing one child, Allah brought that very child to his own house.

Musa (عليه السلام) grew up to be a very strong man. One day, when he was in the city, he found two men fighting each other. One of them called the Prophet for help, and the Prophet hit the other man, but he was so strong that the man accidentally died.

Musa (عليه السلام) immediately turned to Allah in forgiveness and admitted his sins. He felt terrible for what he did and was afraid of it. Eventually, people began to come after him, and he was forced to leave Egypt for Medyan.

In Medyan, he worked as a shephard. He even got married, and had a family! After 10 years, however, he began to miss Egypt, and wished to go back to his mother.

To reach Egypt, Musa (عليه السلام) and his family had to cross a desert. During a cold night, he kept trying to start a fire, but without success. After a while, he spotted a fire near a mountain.

He asked his family to wait while he finds the source of the fire. When he went near the fire, he heard his Rabb calling him.

Allah spoke to Musa (عليه السلام)
told him:

"Oh Musa, I
Am Allah,
Rabb Al'
Alameen"

Allah told Musa (عليه السلام) to throw his stick, and when he did, it turned into a big snake! Musa (عليه السلام) was very scared, but Allah reassured him, and said, "Do not be scared, you will be safe". He was then told to place his right hand in his garment, and when he took it out, it shone bright white.

All these miracles were given to Musa (عليه السلام) by Allah. He was chosen as a Messenger of Allah, and he was chosen to speak to Allah, these are favours from Allah. Even though Musa (عليه السلام) simply went to get fire, he got something even greater, Prophethood!

From Musa (عليه السلام)'s story, we learn that even if we sin, we must return to Allah, and seek forgiveness. Allah always forgives those who return back to him, and He blesses them with more than what they had.
